Along with librettist/lyricist Mark Campbell, Paul Moravec

organized a large ensemble work that united more than 100 opera singers in song in a message of hope and solidarity.

I loved the music studio - its location up the hill from the Ikaros Villa Orbiana, its vibe, its views. If there is such a thing as "Bogliasco's magic!" Ray's latest opinion piece, offering a cosmic perspective on our circumstance, justsstreamed.

Make Me a World imprint, which Chris curates. The book wouldn't exist if not for Chris' vision and urged me to turn the idea into a book for young kids. Now it's been published by Random House's Ikaros. I was inspired by a story of a child, a planet, a crash, a journey, a star. We are all solar system children, no?

"My picture book debut, Child of the Universe, was conceived at Bogliasco, " says the astrophysicist and writer, now Dean of Arts and Sciences at Cornell University. "Its origin traces back to a New York City street, an old building, a wall, and a ladder."

Ray's latest opinion piece, offering a cosmic perspective on our circumstance, just appeared in USA Today. His next book, "Life Overtakes Me," was nominated for a National Book Award. His third book, "Inchoate," including the trailer here and especially trompe-l'oeil.
